THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1852.

62 In another column will be found the advertisement of the world-renowned English Review. The intelligent reader don't need a commendation of them, as he is quite aware of their high character in the departments of politics, literature, philosophy, and almost every subject of human thought.

The London Quarterly, and Blackwood's Magazine, are conducted by men of the conservative and low school. They are read with interest, however, by the most liberal, on account of the ability with which their articles are written. They are devoted to the past, apprehensive of the future, and seldom pleased with the present. Most subjects treated of, however, have no connection with politics, and are both entertaining and instructive.

The Edinburgh Review is the old organ of the more liberal views of the English people, and has been generally the able and persistent advocate of every measure of reform.

The Westminster is democratic, with a strong leaning to republicanism.

The North British was started by the free church of Scotland shortly after separation from the established church a few years ago. It's articles, however, are not confined to religious subjects.

It is a favorable time to subscribe just now, at the commencement of the new year. Price is greatly reduced, as will be seen by the advertisement. It will be hard to find the same compass any where else, as much interesting knowledge and information, as in the pages of these reviews. Their merits, however, are so well known to the reading public, that they scarcely need a description.

Lord Derby in a Quandary.

The practitioners find they are cheated again. Derby dodges protection; preferring the honors of office to mere political doctrines. His old friends are not so pliant. They are somewhat fired with indignation, and threaten a fire in the nest. If they can't have the policy they have so long fought for, it is quite likely they will not appreciate the importance of Derby holding office at all.

Derby wants to get back to protection by degrees—by successive efforts; but his design is shallow. The dog couldn't clean the mouth; the well at two jumps; and no more can Lord Derby get back from free trade to protection by successive steps.

The Expedition to Japan.

Our government is about sending out a large force to the vicinity of the Celestials, without much explanation of what it means. It may be all well enough; but it looks like our government was about to commence filibustering on our account.

Our neighbor of the Journal undertook to explain some time ago, and made a queer fist of it. He wrote about protection for aggression upon Japan—about opening ports with cannon, and other unsightly ways of doing things which christians in favor of law and order, like ourselves, could not quite see the honesty and propriety of. Now, we are opposed to all expeditions for plunder, robbery and piracy; and we have some suspicions that this is a lawless enterprise, which ought to be arrested under the law of 1818, or some other.

The legislature of Vermont has passed a liquor law similar to that of Maine. It is to be subjected to a vote of the people in March next.

The Hon. C. G. Atherton, of N. H., has been elected to the United States Senate by the legislature of his State. He succeeds J. P. Hale, who has been misrepresenting the State for the six years past.

The government of Belgium is proposing still more stringent measures to prevent the press from publishing any criticisms upon other governments, which indicates apprehension of France.

By the way, wouldn't it be well for the President of the United States to give the unruly press of the country a lesson? Pius Smith's being suspected of writing unpalatable things, has gotten up all this trouble. It's inconvenient sometimes, this freedom of the press!

Snow is a foot deep in the interior of New Hampshire, while hot weather, mugginess, and yellow fever are just going out in S. Carolina.

The Alton Telegraph states that the whole line of the great Central Illinois Railroad, from Cairo to Chicago, is under contract, and the work on each division is going on with all possible despatch.

The Government of the confederation of Switzerland is about to send to the Washington monument a block of granite from the Berne Oberland.

The "Good Time Coming"—The signs of the times, remarks the Philadelphia Argus, give unmistakable indications of the approach of a period of unexampled business and commercial activity, with its usual concomitants, high prices and high wages. A quickened movement in many branches of industry is already perceptible; especially in navigation and in manufactures generally. The iron manufacture has been improving for some time, consequent in some degree on the high price of iron in England. The cotton manufacturing establishments are in full operation with the promise of speedily repairing past losses, and earning handsome dividends for the future. Business generally is feeling new impetus—money is abundant at fair rates; and everything gives promise that we are on the eve of one of the greatest periods of commercial and business prosperity, the country has ever witnessed.

This improved condition of things is in part attributable to extraneous causes. The immense additions of gold from California and Australia have to a great extent relieved the pressure of the Journal always so effectual.

—The editor of the Louisville Journal the day or so before the recent election, addressed the following stirring words to the white party:

"What are you ready? We hear you shout 'We are ready'—and may God have mercy on the fee."

It appears his prayer was answered, and God did have mercy on the fee. The fee of the white had no more effect on the democrats than so much saw-dust. Are the prayers of the editor of the Journal always so effectual?

—The recent Convention at Mount Gilead was numerously attended, the church being filled during the sessions. There was quite a sprinkling of Quakers present, and the resolutions reported the second day produced considerable discussion, and was finally adopted. Mrs. T. C. Sevance, of the city, was in address, which was seconded by a learned attorney, Mr. A. L. Mine and Prof. Stockwell, of Cincinnati, who addressed crowded houses.—Cleveland Herald.

Two Brothers in Congress.—E. B. Washburn is elected to Congress from the Galion (Id.) district. Mr. Washburn is the brother of Hon. Israel Washburn, who was elected to Congress a short time since.

They are sons of Israel Washburn, of Maine, formerly of Raynham, in Bristol County. This is probably the first instance of two brothers meeting together in Congress, from two extremes of the Union, both highly esteemed for their talents and moral worth.
